Faith Alive Education Committee Continues Its Tasks

The Faith Alive Education Committee met on October 9th at Melania Hall to continue its efforts in establishing a Catholic school system for the greater Green Bay area.

The Committee made final revisions to the list of attributes that will be used in formulating several models of a school system. Attributes that will be considered are: People; Finance; Physical Assets; Demographics/Marketing; Curriculum; and Technology. Data is being collected from each school and parish regarding these attributes and assembled in a format that allows comparisons and evaluation.

In an effort to collect consistent and timely data, Mark Salisbury, Diocesan Superintendent of Schools has visited with the Business Managers of each of the eleven schools.

“The people I met with at the schools were very cooperative and are looking forward to the next steps of the process”, says Salisbury.

Salisbury plans on meeting with school principals in November to gather data about school curriculum. He also plans on seeking information from other area Catholic school system leaders, in an effort to learn first-hand from their own experience.

In addition to its other business, The Committee discussed effective ways to share staff, and how shared staff would improve the educational program, a benefit of becoming a system. A work group of committee members and staff will be addressing this at next month’s meeting.

An e-mail address to field inquiries, concerns and comments about Faith Alive has been established by the Diocese. The address for this mailbox is FaithAlive@gbdioc.org

The Faith Alive Education Committee is scheduled to meet at least monthly through the winter.
